

11.22.2025

Preamble:

Session begins with Lachlan's homework

People present

Lachlan, Snow, Tina, Tom, Norhan.

Session 22/11/25 start

Session begins with some clarification of previous events regarding the druid (not druidS) seen in the moonpool.

Druid Aelrindë ▾

High elf features, dark stained with a viscous black substance

Hair wild and tangled with a dark glimmer on the silver hair.

Pale robes degraded covered in symbol of the temple triumvirate

A cracked crescent moon symbol on her forehead pulsing
Prismatic alien sheen to her eyes. Deep mourning in eyes
Holly trees with trapped shades moving around their bases.

Mythallar is confirmed 'dark'

Party long rests ins B4R6 alarm spell and owl familiar is set watch.

Dagoth studies the runes on the previously trapped chest and is disappointed that the trap rune was getting 'reset' by the mythallar.

Cromash feels a fey presence

Dagoth lends Merci his Lorehold primer to study. She learns find familiar

Long rest complete with no complications.

Cromash smells Shadar-Kai

Cornholio moves to B5 R1,2

307dac85-deef-45d5-baee-ec90c0827cb81.jpg

The statues/golems depicting Corellon, Elistrae, Chauntea and Mystra (later find out Mystral because Lachlan things with words again) are creeping around in a pattern.

Cornholio using his echo, flies along the roof scouting the location. The golems are in large room with 8 ornate moonstone pillars.

The Golems try to chase Cornholio but have some issues reaching him.

Combat begins

Yennefer flies down and casts globe of invulnerability from the staff

Cornholio and Cromash start swinging

Dagoth feeds Yennerfer a elixir to buff spell attacks and gets pushback.

Cromash rolls max fire damage on fire giant strike 3 times.

Golems have a eye beam attack that can slow targets. They never use it effectively

Cromash takes all the damage this combat.

Yennefer burns a lot of resources.

Mystral golem tries to crit against Cromash but gets silvery barbed. lawl get fucked Lachlan

Cornholio gets hasted.

Yennefer casts lighting bolt from the staff and zaps Cromash's wolf.

Akulakhan goes down

Cromash sucks down multiple healing words

Cromash sends the Mystral golem to shar (or does he? he thinks he did)

Dagoth deals no damage to any of the likeness of the gods

Combat outcome:

2380 EXP

Head of the Chauntea golem is very intact.

Exploration

Cornholio moves into B5R3

He finds a bed and a desk. The desk has 15 journals with the most recent one laid out on the desk.

Merci moves into B5R6

She finds an executive level shrine the the temple triumvirate

Three platinum effigies each weighing 47,311 pounds
Each has an offering bowl. She instinctively offers a prayer to the trio and then one to Lathander.

Dagoth is in B5R3 with Cornholio and Dagoth starts reading the most recent journal entry. He finds 5 note worthy entries
Cornholio rifles through the drawers and finds:

Treasure ▾

Holy symbol of Eilistraee made from ELF WOOD of such craftsmanship to be worth many 100's of thousand gold pieces. Only Cornholio and later Yennefer knows this exists.

House seal stamp from and ancient house made of electrum ~40 GP

Cornholio (still hasted) leaving the objects behind on the desk then sprints to B5R6

Seeing the large mass of precious metal before him and giving no fucks about desecrating the triumvirates shrine he starts trying to stuff the Eilistraee effigy into his bag of holding.

Finding he is not strong enough to steal it, he urinates in all three bowls and sets his own bowl in the middle with 3 star rubies (Favoured by Corellon and a few other Elf gods) and some holy water. Start praying to Shar and rolls a 20 on religion. This thread is left hanging...

Yennefer walks in on this mid-urination and then turns on her heels and walks over to find someone else to annoy. She finds Dagoth reading the journals, he is making some concerning noises and does not notice her walk in.

She then looks over Dagoth's shoulder to see what he is reading but becomes frustrated that she can't read Sylvan (this elf crap).

After much discussion, (out of character) she decides to pocket the holy symbol which she believes she could get 300,000 GP for. She fumbles the sleight of hand (7) and Dagoth turns around to some clanking sounds. Yennefer makes some overtures to taking the symbol and Dagoth just comments be careful, don't break it and then tries to go back to reading the journals.

Yennefer still discontented, pesters Dagoth about some invoice for services rendered. Dagoth ends the magical tinkering value attached to the invoice, knowing full well he can redo it later.

Cromash has moved up to the stairs down to the next level and is resummoning his Wolf.

Merci has left the shrine room and also heads over to the office Dagoth is in and starts reading the journals together.

Despite there been 15 books it turns out there is really only 4 (Difference between Lachlan's dice roll and prepared writings). She starts reading the oldest journal

Merci learns some background facts about the druid that is beneath us somewhere.

Now that Merci is there, and Dagoth having read enough to have a sense of urgency he starts lining the books up and gets Merci to join him in a ritual casting of Scholar's touch to speed read the rest of the books. Dagoth should have got guidance cast on him but didn't ask.

Dagoth fails a wis save but Meri passes.

Merci gets an information chill and Dagoth's eyes get that alien prismatic sheen until Merci shakes his shoulder and he pops out of 'it' (Lachlan - don't worry about it)

Dagoth and Merci understand that the temple they are in fell beneath the now Anauroch desert as Mystral died and the temple staff/followers were getting drained by the phaerimm so the clergy took steps to protect their followers with necromancy to stash away their souls into the trees of the grove. The druid is 2000 years old and feels let down by Corellon's inaction.

Dagoth's thoughts "WHY IS SHE WEARING MY GAUNTLENT" (She has on her left hand Wraithguard)

Dagoth leaves the office to relay the Information he and Merci have found and that she has known of our presence here for at the very least 8 hours.

Most of the party is near the stairs down.

Cromash can hear a forest from down the stairwell
Yennefer starts walking away from the stairs as Voltaire (but not really) walks up the stairs.

Cromash realises this is the most quiet he has seen Voltaire in a long time. His eyes have the prismatic sheen, Cromash passes the wis save, he knows this is not Voltaire.

Dagoth near by thinks about the phrase he read in the journals about 'his thousand masks'

The druid now takes her original shape and speaks to Cromash 'Do not fear, you will not break, you will bend'

Dagoth concludes she appears to be ~18 level caster

Session ends here along with a few checks and statements after I have packed up

Next session thoughts ▾

Could we talk her into knowing/realizing that Corellon didn't let her down, up until a few days (?) ago, the overgod Ao had forbidden the gods to directedly interact with the realms, she was not abandoned, there has been so much divine upheaveal that this was the quickest action could be taken, in the interest of balance (appeal to druid's ethos and wors in her diary) we have been sent as a motley crew of Elves, fiends (tiefling), goblinoids (orcs) and a broad range different gods followed. Ao's rule was broken by shar and Corellon stepped into take advantage of the situation and was then able to teleport us here to help you/fix/redeem/rescue you. I read the journals upstairs about the moonstone you think Corellon sent you, it was probably a ploy by the outsider gods to corrupt you and destroy all your hard work maintaining the sacred balance of the triumvirate.

She is probaly way too tainted at this point to be talked out of it. Perhaps the above discussion thread the light of lathander (cleric things) and some bulk holy water could cleanse her.

Or implent strat 1 or 2 or 3 to negate her high level casting and make the fight trivial